College of Education Internship Philosophy

The philosophy of education embraced by the Graduate Education Program at Oral Roberts University is concerned with how theory is applied and tested in practice and how practice improves theory. The internship embodies that philosophy and is specifically structured to permit interns to integrate theory and practice in a field-based setting under the guidance of an experienced cooperating administrator (mentor). The internship program, as developed by the Graduate School of Education, will provide the intern with a variety of meaningful leadership experiences in actual school based settings. The experience will be coordinated by the director of graduate internships in consultation with the cooperating administrator (mentor).

Theoretical Framework

The practical knowledge and skills gained from the actual administrative leadership field experience of the university supervisors and cooperating administrators (mentors) serves as the basic foundation for the theoretical framework for the Internship in Executive School Leadership. Woven into that framework are the recommendations from the learned societies, professional organizations, and the scholarly literature. For information on the College of Education's conceptual framework please see appendix A.

CAEP Accreditation, NELP Standards & PASL

The Council for the Accreditation of Educator Preparation (CAEP) accreditation process has two primary components: Educator Preparation Program (EPP) Review and Program Review. Educator Preparation Program Reviews use Advanced Level Standards, developed by CAEP, to make accreditation decisions for an EPP (the ORU School of Education). Program Reviews use Program Standards, developed by a Specialized Professional Association (SPA), to determine if a Program (a specific discipline area) can demonstrate mastery of the SPA standards. Programs must receive SPA recognition in order for the EPP to receive CAEP accreditation.

The National Educational Leadership Preparation (NELP) standards are aligned to the Professional Standards for Educational Leaders (PSEL). They provide specific performance expectations for what novice building and district level leaders should know and be able to do once they graduate. The NELP standards focus on the knowledge, skills, and attributes required by administrator candidates to lead and manage educational organizations centered on teaching and learning. It is important for all administrative candidates to be able to accomplish the tasks associated with each of the NELP standards and elements.

The Performance Assessment for School Leaders (PASL) is aligned to the NELP standards as outlined on page 7. Each of the PASL tasks and steps have several corresponding NELP standard components. These tasks are structured in a way for the intern to experience and develop the knowledge s/he needs to be a successful administrator at the building or district level.

This is a required and valuable learning experience as you gain exposure to a variety of new educational contexts and cultures. You may complete all post-assignments at one site, or a variety of sites.

The post-assignment for each internship related course will be provided by the professor during your course. However, examples of post-assignments for the core internship related courses are found in appendix B (including the rubric and associated documents).

2. Completion of 2 NELP-aligned internship related courses:
 - a. Operational Leadership: Human, Physical and Capital Resources (MED 523/GADM 823)
 - b. Policy, Governance and Politics (MED 524/GADM 824)
3. Completion of NELP-aligned internship course:
 - a. Internship in Executive School Leadership (MED 593/GADM 826)

As a Master or Doctoral level student, you must complete the seven core internship related courses before you enroll in the Internship in Executive School Leadership course.

During the Internship in Executive School Leadership you are required to complete the other 120 working hours with your cooperating administrator, who will sign off on your time log (see appendix C). You may complete the Internship in Executive School Leadership course at your primary place of employment. Much of this time will be used to work closely with your cooperating administrator and school community in order to complete and submit the 3 Performance Assessment for School Leaders (PASL) tasks.

Enrollment in the Internship in Executive School Leadership course (MED 593/GADM 826) requires the director of graduate internship's approval and the completion of the internship application (appendix D). All relevant information pertaining to the internship is contained in this handbook and the respective courses' syllabi.

Performance Assessment for School Leaders (PASL) Overview Requirements

The Performance Assessment for School Leaders (PASL) requires you to complete 3 tasks. The 3 tasks require you to submit 20 artifacts, one 15-minute video and answer 70 guiding prompts (questions) in 22.5 pages or less.

Each of the 3 tasks requires you to work closely with the director of graduate internships, your cooperating administrator, and other school faculty. Improved student learning is the goal of good teaching and PASL, therefore each task requires that you submit a sample of student work as evidence of the impact. Please see appendix E for the complete set of PASL links. Please review the PASL Candidate and Educator Handbook as a starting point.

Each task is designed to assess your ability to implement a best practice methodology in school improvement. Here is a very brief description of what you will be required to do for each task:

Task 1: You will work with your cooperating administrator to identify a problem or challenge, research the issue and develop a plan that will affect instructional practice and student achievement.

Task 2: You will work with your cooperating administrator and a team of colleagues to develop a list of significant professional development needs. Once the group decides on the priority area for professional development you will facilitate the professional development and analyze its effectiveness with walk-through observations and a feedback survey.

Task 3: You will work with your cooperating administrator to identify a team of teachers with varying experience to develop a collaborative team. You will then provide leadership of the collaborative team by facilitating the development of a plan to improve instruction, student learning, and the school culture. You will be required to submit a 15-minute video demonstrating the facilitation of the plan. This task is worth twice as much.

For current information about the PASL tasks please visit the PASL website: click here. You will register for the PASL on their website. On the PASL site you can also learn how to prepare for the assessment, build and submit your tasks, and review the expected writing guidelines. Please see samples of pass and fail work in the Library of Examples and understand how you will be scored. See appendix E for the links to the Library of Examples.

The PASL tasks require time and planning. It is best to take two semesters to complete the tasks properly. It is highly recommended that you begin working on the PASL tasks in August 2021, complete Step 1 of each task by December, 2021, formally enroll in this course in spring 2021, and submit your PASL tasks to ETS® at that time. The director of graduate internships will assist you with planning and preparing your submission beginning as early as possible. In 2020-2021 the registration window for PASL in the fall is from July 19th to November 16th. PASL tasks are due Nov. 30th at 2 p.m. EST. The registration window for PASL in spring 2022 is between July 19th, 2021 - April 5th, 2022. Tasks are to be submitted starting Jan. 4th and are due April 19th, 2022 at 2 p.m. EST.

National Educational Leadership Preparation Standards (NELP) & ETS Performance Assessment for School Leaders (PASL) Alignment

Intern Responsibilities

The ORU Graduate School Internship program embodies a philosophy that is specifically structured to permit interns to integrate theory and practice in a field-based setting under the guidance of experienced cooperating administrators (mentors) and the director of graduate internships. Your responsibilities include the following:

1. Read this internship handbook in entirety.
2. Review how to register, prepare, and submit the PASL tasks. Click here for the PASL website.
3. Consider the cooperating administrators you will approach in order to complete: (1) the PASL aligned post-assignments in the five core internship related courses, and (2) the three PASL tasks in the final Internship in Executive School Leadership course.
4. Consult with the director of graduate internships to discuss ideas and options for fulfilling the internship requirements in order to make your plan.
5. Complete the 7 core internship courses. For the 5 courses with the PASL aligned post-assignment, work with a Cooperating Administrator and site(s) other than where you currently work. These must be at a different age level. Use the course specific Cooperating Administrator Orientation Post-Assignment memos for your introduction (see appendix F for examples).
6. Review all PASL documents and requirements (see appendix E for PASL links) including how and when to enroll online for the Fall or Spring testing sessions with ETS®. Carefully consider the time frames and submission requirements.
7. In liaison with the director of graduate internships, find a cooperating administrator to mentor you for the Internship in Executive School Leadership. Be sure to share with him or her the Cooperating Administrator Orientation for Executive Internship memo (see appendix F for example) and this internship handbook before he or she agrees to be your cooperating administrator.
8. Enroll in and complete the application form for the Internship in Executive School Leadership (see appendix D), have it signed by the cooperating administrator (mentor) and return it to the director of graduate internships.
9. Consider carefully when you will register for the PASL. The cost is $350 and it is an additional course fee. Click here for the page.
10. Perform the internship in a manner satisfactory for the director of graduate internships and the cooperating administrator, making sure to satisfy both the time and PASL requirements. Submit your time log (see appendix C) to the director of graduate internships after it has been signed off by your cooperating administrator

ORU Graduate College of Education

Conceptual Framework

APPENDIX A

ORAL ROBERTS UNIVERSITY GRADUATE SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

Introduction

The conceptual framework for the Oral Roberts University College of Education provides the structure for course content and standards, stated student competencies, instruction, assessment, and evaluation. The College of Education offers a diverse teacher preparation program designed to equip teacher candidates for initial assignments in elementary and secondary schools as well as advanced programs for school administration. The three segments—general education, specialized education, and professional education—are offered to prepare graduates for professional responsibilities in public, private, Christian, and home schools.

The philosophy of education which is embraced by the Oral Roberts University College of Education and which forms the basis for the teacher preparation program is one particularly concerned with the relationship between educational theory and practice—how theory is applied and assessed in practice, and how practice is evaluated to improve student performance.

Educating the Whole Person

In keeping with the University's Statement of Purpose, The College of Education is rooted in the philosophical position that education is the shaping of the whole person: spirit, mind, and body.

At the center of the education program at Oral Roberts University is the understanding that true wisdom and knowledge come from God. The Bible is God's inspired Word and is upheld as the standard and central point of reference. The College of Education prepares administrators; curriculum specialists; and teachers for public, private, and Christian schools to go into every person's world as transformed educators to transform society.

University Vision and Purpose

The Unit's conceptual framework is linked to the University's vision statement and incorporates the purposes of the University. The University's vision and purposes are the central focus of the Unit's design and are reflected in the Unit's activities.

VISION STATEMENT:

Oral Roberts University came into being as a result of its founder, Oral Roberts, obeying God's mandate to build a university on God's authority and the Holy Spirit. God's commission to Oral Roberts was to:

Raise up your students to hear My voice, to go where My light is dim, where My voice is heard small and My healing power is not known. To go even to the uttermost bounds of the earth. Their work will exceed yours, and in this I am well pleased.

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE:

It is the purpose of Oral Roberts University, in its commitment to the historic Christian faith, to assist the student in his/her quest for knowledge of his/her relationship to God, man, and the universe. Dedicated to the realization of truth and the achievement of one's potential life capacity, the University seeks to graduate an integrated person – spiritually alive, intellectually alert, and physically disciplined. To accomplish this purpose, Oral Roberts University seeks to synthesize by means of interdisciplinary cross-pollination the best traditions in liberal arts, professional, and graduate education, with a charismatic concern to enable students to go into every person's world with healing for the totality of human need.

Conceptual Model

A modified Celtic cross represents the visual conceptual framework for the unit. Because of the Christian foundation of Oral Roberts University, the use of a cross is appropriate as the visual model for the Conceptual Framework Model for the School of Education. The Celtic cross is distinguished by a circle surrounding the cross point. The ORU College of Education visual model consists of a strong foundation formed by the Oral Roberts University Mission and a Christian Worldview and Biblical Foundation. The cross is capped with General Education, while the crossbeam contents represent the Academic Area of Emphasis in each subject area of specialty, and the Professional Education component to represent pedagogical preparation. These four components reflect the University's focus on Spirit, Mind and Body.

The circle surrounding the point of crossing and merging of the Spirit, Mind, and Body components further connects all contents by implementing educational Competencies, Experiences, Outreach, and Assessment.

The Conceptual Framework includes a focus on the Spirit, Mind, and Body of each student:

The Spirit: ORU Mission—Christian Worldview and Biblical Foundation— commitment to the Christian heritage, and "Going into every person's world."

The Mind: *General Education—*emphasis on the humanities and the arts and sciences.
*Academic Area of Emphasis—*subject area specialty
*Professional Education—*pedagogical preparation

The Body: Attention to health and physical fitness

All of these combine in the Celtic cross to connect the components through clearly defined Competencies, Experiences, Assessments, and Outreach activities in the community and throughout the world to provide continuing assessment to identify successes, evaluate needs, and identify the basis for future improvements.

The entire Conceptual Model is overlaid on Oral Roberts University's unique Whole Person seal, symbolizing the University's founding purpose and emphasis on Spirit, Mind, and Body.

Theme

Transformed Educators

" . . . be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind . . . " Romans 12:2

The Oral Roberts University School of Education's theme is "Transformed Educators." The School of Education's desire is to develop and train future educators as teachers, principals, superintendents, and other professional school personnel who have been transformed by the power of Jesus Christ and who demonstrate the character and dispositions of Christian values, ethics, and moral integrity. The College of Education also desires to develop students as transformed professional educators who know and demonstrate the content, pedagogical, and professional knowledge, skills, and dispositions necessary to help all students learn and to be educational leaders.

Vision

Transforming Society, The Miracle Ahead, A Transformed Generation

"Ye have not chose me . . . I have chosen you and ordained you that you should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain." John 15:16

The Oral Roberts University College of Education vision is to train and develop professional school personnel who will go into every person's world, into public, private, Christian, and home schools as transformed educators. As transformed educators they will make such an impact that they will be a catalyst for transforming society, which in turn will help transform the next generation.

Mission

Preparing Professional Christian Educators to Go Into Every Person's World

The Oral Roberts University College of Education is charged to provide the opportunity for individuals who hold Christian principles to participate in initial and advanced study in preparation for professional public and private responsibilities in the field of education throughout the world.

Glossary for Writing Formats

Description (Also List & State): Description in this context is a retelling of what happened in a school situation or event. This kind of writing is meant to set the scene for raters. Your description should be logically ordered and provide enough detail to allow raters to have a basic sense of your building situation so that they can understand what you are conveying in your analysis.

- Critical features are accurately and precisely enumerated or explained.
- The elements or features of the events, people, concepts, or strategies referenced are described clearly and in a logical order.
- ALL features or elements that would allow an outsider to see as you see whatever is described are included.

Analysis: Analysis deals with reasons, motives, and interpretation and is supported by the concrete evidence you provide in the materials you submit. Your analytic writing will show raters the thought processes that you used to arrive at the conclusions you make about a leadership situation or event. Analysis demonstrates the significance of the evidence you submit. In some cases, it will include the achievements that resulted from an activity you facilitated. Or in other cases, it could be a discussion of the results of a survey that solicited feedback from various sources.

Reflection: Reflection is the thought process that occurs after the completion of an activity. This is the kind of thought process that allows you to think deeply about what occurred — and what did not occur — during the leadership event and to make decisions about how you would approach similar situations in the future. You could decide to do something the same way, differently, or not at all. Although reflective thought may occur in many places, in your responses to the reflection questions you must show how you will use what you learned from your leadership experiences to inform and improve your practice.

NOTE: Analysis and reflection overlap

Analysis and reflection do overlap, though they are not identical. Analysis involves the interpretation and examination of elements or events supported by evidence. Reflection, a particular kind of analysis, always suggests self-analysis or retrospective consideration of one's practice. When you are asked to analyze or reflect, be certain that your response meets these criteria.

For example, if you are instructed to analyze the success of a particular activity or some specific strategy, do not use the analysis or reflection sections to explain what happened. Explaining what happened is a form of description. Moreover, simply stating a conclusion (e.g., "The professional development was a success!") or saying that you observed the fulfillment of your goals without giving evidence or examples to support the statement is not analysis. Raters need to be made aware of why you interpreted the results of a lesson the way you did. You need to explain your interpretation of the evidence (a form of analysis) as well as your understanding of what should come next (a form of reflection).

Analysis deals with reasons, motives, and interpretation. All of these are grounded in the concrete evidence you provide in the artifacts you submit as part of your performance assessment. But you must explain the significance of events and not expect the rater to draw conclusions. Your examples cannot tell the rater what you inferred about your practice — only your analysis and reflection can do that.

Tell the rater how the professional development in your building affected student performance — doing so is a form of analysis and interpretation. Use your evidence of colleagues' work to explain and illustrate your practice and also to provide a context for the artifact.

Ask yourself the following questions when preparing your analysis and reflection:

- What did my colleagues know before this professional experience?
- What did my colleagues learn because of this professional experience?
- What did I know about my colleagues and their knowledge before this professional experience?
- What did I learn about my colleagues and my leadership because of this professional experience?
- What would I do differently? (reflection)

In light of this course, under your Cooperating Administrator’s leadership and guidance, identify an area that can be improved upon by offering professional development at your site. The professional development should improve cultural responsiveness to the site’s values, while at the same time directly impacting instructional practice and student learning. Complete as a group or individually. Your "site" is defined as: Masters – School building; Doctorate – School district or Higher Education Institution. Please track your time in a self-created time log (WORD, EXCEL, Google Docs, etc.). (24 working hours)

How will you determine whether the goal(s) is (are) achieved? In light of the whole person lifestyle, how will the professional development plan impact instructional practice and student learning? What research supports the identified focus for the professional development plan (e.g., studies, strategies, information from experts in the field, primary sources)? Explain the connection between the research and the identified focus for the professional development plan. What other factors influenced the development of the building-level professional development plan (e.g., budget, schedules, staff, facilities, time)? What legal parameters did you consider in your planning and advocacy? What stakeholders will you involve in the creation of the professional development plan? Why did you involve these individuals? What follow-up will you provide to support the implementation of the professional development plan? Provide a rationale.

Glossary for Writing Formats

Description (Also List & State): Description in this context is a retelling of what happened in a school situation or event. This kind of writing is meant to set the scene for raters. Your description should be logically ordered and provide enough detail to allow raters to have a basic sense of your building situation so that they can understand what you are conveying in your analysis.

- Critical features are accurately and precisely enumerated or explained.
- The elements or features of the events, people, concepts, or strategies referenced are described clearly and in a logical order.
- ALL features or elements that would allow an outsider to see as you see whatever is described are included.

Analysis: Analysis deals with reasons, motives, and interpretation and is supported by the concrete evidence you provide in the materials you submit. Your analytic writing will show raters the thought processes that you used to arrive at the conclusions you make about a leadership situation or event. Analysis demonstrates the significance of the evidence you submit. In some cases, it will include the achievements that resulted from an activity you facilitated. Or in other cases, it could be a discussion of the results of a survey that solicited feedback from various sources.

Reflection: Reflection is the thought process that occurs after the completion of an activity. This is the kind of thought process that allows you to think deeply about what occurred — and what did not occur — during the leadership event and to make decisions about how you would approach similar situations in the future. You could decide to do something the same way, differently, or not at all. Although reflective thought may occur in many places, in your responses to the reflection questions you must show how you will use what you learned from your leadership experiences to inform and improve your practice.

NOTE: Analysis and reflection overlap

Analysis and reflection do overlap, though they are not identical. Analysis involves the interpretation and examination of elements or events supported by evidence. Reflection, a particular kind of analysis, always suggests self-analysis or retrospective consideration of one's practice. When you are asked to analyze or reflect, be certain that your response meets these criteria.

For example, if you are instructed to analyze the success of a particular activity or some specific strategy, do not use the analysis or reflection sections to explain what happened. Explaining what happened is a form of description. Moreover, simply stating a conclusion (e.g., "The professional development was a success!") or saying that you observed the fulfillment of your goals without giving evidence or examples to support the statement is not analysis. Ratifiers need to be made aware of why you interpreted the results of a lesson the way you did. You need to explain your interpretation of the evidence (a form of analysis) as well as your understanding of what should come next (a form of reflection).

Analysis deals with reasons, motives, and interpretation. All of these are grounded in the concrete evidence you provide in the artifacts you submit as part of your performance assessment. But you must explain the significance of events and not expect the rater to draw conclusions. Your examples cannot tell the rater what you inferred about your practice — only your analysis and reflection can do that.

Tell the rater how the professional development in your building affected student performance — doing so is a form of analysis and interpretation. Use your evidence of colleagues' work to explain and illustrate your practice and also to provide a context for the artifact.

Ask yourself the following questions when preparing your analysis and reflection:

- What did my colleagues know before this professional experience?
- What did my colleagues learn because of this professional experience?
- What did I know about my colleagues and their knowledge before this professional experience?
- What did I learn about my colleagues and my leadership because of this professional experience?
- What would I do differently? (reflection)

Performance Assessment for School Leaders (PASL)

School Leader Plan Template

This form represents a generic template for creating a plan for each of the tasks. It is intended to provide guidance as you organize your thoughts to determine what needs to be done with your colleagues within the task. You do not need to use this specific form, but you do need to submit a two-page maximum draft of your plan for each of the tasks. The plan delineated in this document is a draft plan. As you implement it, you will be making changes. Those changes do not have to be represented here.

Task __ Plan

Identify the components of your plan and list details about each.

Glossary for Writing Formats

Description (Also List & State): Description in this context is a retelling of what happened in a school situation or event. This kind of writing is meant to set the scene for raters. Your description should be logically ordered and provide enough detail to allow raters to have a basic sense of your building situation so that they can understand what you are conveying in your analysis.

- Critical features are accurately and precisely enumerated or explained.
- The elements or features of the events, people, concepts, or strategies referenced are described clearly and in a logical order.
- ALL features or elements that would allow an outsider to see as you see whatever is described are included.

Analysis: Analysis deals with reasons, motives, and interpretation and is supported by the concrete evidence you provide in the materials you submit. Your analytic writing will show raters the thought processes that you used to arrive at the conclusions you make about a leadership situation or event. Analysis demonstrates the significance of the evidence you submit. In some cases, it will include the achievements that resulted from an activity you facilitated. Or in other cases, it could be a discussion of the results of a survey that solicited feedback from various sources.

Reflection: Reflection is the thought process that occurs after the completion of an activity. This is the kind of thought process that allows you to think deeply about what occurred — and what did not occur — during the leadership event and to make decisions about how you would approach similar situations in the future. You could decide to do something the same way, differently, or not at all. Although reflective thought may occur in many places, in your responses to the reflection questions you must show how you will use what you learned from your leadership experiences to inform and improve your practice.

NOTE: Analysis and reflection overlap

Analysis and reflection do overlap, though they are not identical. Analysis involves the interpretation and examination of elements or events supported by evidence. Reflection, a particular kind of analysis, always suggests self-analysis or retrospective consideration of one's practice. When you are asked to analyze or reflect, be certain that your response meets these criteria.

For example, if you are instructed to analyze the success of a particular activity or some specific strategy, do not use the analysis or reflection sections to explain what happened. Explaining what happened is a form of description. Moreover, simply stating a conclusion (e.g., "The professional development was a success!") or saying that you observed the fulfillment of your goals without giving evidence or examples to support the statement is not analysis. Raters need to be made aware of why you interpreted the results of a lesson the way you did. You need to explain your interpretation of the evidence (a form of analysis) as well as your understanding of what should come next (a form of reflection).

Analysis deals with reasons, motives, and interpretation. All of these are grounded in the concrete evidence you provide in the artifacts you submit as part of your performance assessment. But you must explain the significance of events and not expect the rater to draw conclusions. Your examples cannot tell the rater what you inferred about your practice — only your analysis and reflection can do that.

Tell the rater how the professional development in your building affected student performance — doing so is a form of analysis and interpretation. Use your evidence of colleagues' work to explain and illustrate your practice and also to provide a context for the artifact.

Ask yourself the following questions when preparing your analysis and reflection:

- What did my colleagues know before this professional experience?
- What did my colleagues learn because of this professional experience?
- What did I know about my colleagues and their knowledge before this professional experience?
- What did I learn about my colleagues and my leadership because of this professional experience?
- What would I do differently? (reflection)

This form represents a generic template for creating a plan for each of the tasks. It is intended to provide guidance as you organize your thoughts to determine what needs to be done with your colleagues within the task. You do not need to use this specific form, but you do need to submit a two-page maximum draft of your plan for each of the tasks. The plan delineated in this document is a draft plan. As you implement it, you will be making changes. Those changes do not have to be represented here.

School Leader Plan Template

This form represents a generic template for creating a plan for each of the tasks. It is intended to provide guidance as you organize your thoughts to determine what needs to be done with your colleagues within the task. You do not need to use this specific form, but you do need to submit a two-page maximum draft of your plan for each of the tasks. The plan delineated in this document is a draft plan. As you implement it, you will be making changes. Those changes do not have to be represented here.

To: Cooperating Administrator

Re: ORU Graduate Student Request for Post-Assignment Collaboration

Dear Sir/Ma'am:

Thank you for your consideration of our graduate candidate's request to collaborate with you on her/his Internship in Executive School Leadership. We need your help to prepare outstanding leaders in the field of education. Your partnership with this candidate, and the Graduate School of Education, is truly appreciated. Thank you.

Dr. Kim Boyd, Dean of the College of Education, and myself, Dr. Patrick Otto, Graduate Chair of the College of Education, would like to welcome and introduce you to the Internship in Executive School Leadership Course. Please click here for our video [YouTube | 5:45].

Introduction to the ETS® Performance Assessment for School Leaders (PASL)

This internship fulfills a unique design in the candidate's program, as it asks the candidate to collaborate with you, as well as the faculty, staff and students at your site, to complete the three tasks required for the ETS® Performance Assessment for School Leaders (PASL).

The PASL tasks assess proven best practices in administration and are designed to be completed within the context of normal school operations. The 3 tasks require your intern to submit to ETS® 19 artifacts, one 15-minute video and the responses to 70 questions in 22.5 pages or less. We are asking you to provide the time, access, and guidance to enable your intern to successfully complete the following three PASL tasks.

PASL Tasks

Task 1: Your intern will work with you to identify a problem or challenge, research the issue, and develop and implement a plan that will affect instructional practice and student achievement.

Task 2: Your intern will work with you and a team of colleagues with different levels of experience to develop a list of significant professional development needs. Once the group decides on the priority area for professional development your intern will facilitate the professional development and analyze its effectiveness with walk-through observations and a feedback survey.

Task 3: Your intern will work with you to identify a team of 3-5 colleagues with varying levels and kinds of experience to develop a collaborative team. Your intern will then provide leadership of the collaborative team by facilitating the development of a plan to improve instruction, student learning, and the school culture. Your intern will be required to submit a 15-minute video demonstrating the facilitation and colleague feedback of the plan.

Intern Evaluations

In addition to collaborating with the Intern to complete the PASL tasks we would like you to evaluate your intern at the middle and end of the internship using the McREL evaluation tool found in the internship handbook.

Documents

For more details on your responsibilities, your intern's responsibilities, PASL and the evaluation tool please see review the internship handbook with the candidate that contains the links, examples or exact copies of every document that is required.

Next Steps

Before agreeing to collaborate please take the time to review the Internship Handbook with the candidate. Click here for the Internship Handbook. If you are aware of, and accept, the responsibilities for this exciting initiative please take the time sign the internship application form that the intern will provide. Then, set aside time for your intern to meet with you to do an in-depth review of the three task requirements and develop a plan to accomplish the work within the timeline for PASL submission to ETS®.

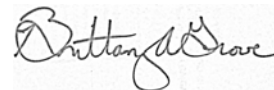

Director of Graduate Internships

Our director of graduate internships will be in touch with you once the internship application has been submitted to answer any questions you may have and check on the progress of the candidate.

We are here to help every step of the way. If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to call or e-mail myself or the director of graduate internships.

Intern Evaluation: McREL

McREL's

PRINCIPAL EVALUATION SYSTEM

NOTE: This document has been edited from the original to reflect the design of the Internship in Executive School Leadership at Oral Roberts University.

The goal of this internship is to achieve growth in the skills and knowledge it takes to be a successful administrator and demonstrate experience with proven methodologies for school improvement. An intern's final grade will take into account the results of this evaluation and other indicators of performance. The goal for both the intern and cooperating administrator is for the intern to (1) show improvement, and (2) complete the internship with "proficient" or "accomplished" in each category. Candidates and Cooperating Administrators will complete this evaluation at the mid-term and final stage of the internship. Below are the steps to follow for each evaluation:

Step	Graduate Candidate Task	Cooperating Administrator Task
1	Meet together to review the PASL tasks and outline the plan and timeline. Sign off on page 2.
2	Complete a plan and timeline for completing the PASL tasks. The "Graduate Candidate PASL Summary Goal-Setting Form" chart on page 3 is an example of how you could organize your plan and timeline.
3	Conference together to: (1) review the plan and timeline, and (2) review the evaluation tool together. Sign off on page 2.
4	Make any edits to the plan and timeline that arose from conferencing. Submit these to the director of graduate internships.
5	Complete a "pre-conference" mid-semester self-evaluation using pages 4-13.	Complete a "pre-conference" mid-semester graduate candidate evaluation using pages 4-13.
6	Conference regarding the evaluations (see below for instructions). Sign off on page 2.
7		Submit "post-conference" mid-semester evaluation to the graduate candidate and the director of graduate internships.
8	Complete a "pre-conference" end-of-semester self-evaluation using pages 4-13.	Complete a "pre-conference" end-of-semester graduate candidate evaluation using pages 4-13.
10		Submit "post-conference" end-of-semester evaluation to the graduate candidate and the director of graduate internships.

Conferencing Procedure:

- At each conference the graduate candidate and the cooperating administrator will each share his or her rating for each category.
- On items with no scoring difference no conversation is necessary.
- On items with a scoring difference of one category you may discuss it, but please keep it brief.
- On any items with more than one category of difference discussion is encouraged. After the discussion, either person may change his or her rating, or keep it the same.
