

Cost of Education

International students applying to the Graduate School of Theology and Ministry are required by the Department of Homeland Security to document sufficient financial resources to meet the educational and living expenses while in the US. Applicants are required to submit financial documentation that equals or exceeds one full year of expense, which is $25,050 for a seminary program. This amount is based on the necessary and highly recommended 12-15 credit hours per semester for the student to complete the graduate theology program within the duration approved by the seminary accrediting agency (MDiv, 3-years; MA programs, 2-years). If you plan to bring any dependents, please increase the total guarantee amount with the appropriate spouse/child amounts indicated by the * below. The Financial Guarantee Form should be completed by you, and, if needed, by your sponsor(s) and accompanied by bank verification. A sponsor may be a family member, a friend, an organization, a church, etc. A Certificate of Eligibility (I-20) will be issued when the financial documentation is approved by the ORU International Student Coordinator and the applicant has been admitted into the seminary program.

There are two types of Assistantships: Graduate and Teaching. Graduate Assistantships are available during the first and subsequent years of study for clerical positions and are currently paid at a rate of $8.25 per hour. A limited number of Teaching Assistantships are offered to students who have completed one year of study. These positions are highly competitive and are determined on the basis of cumulative GPA after two semesters (24 credit hours) of Graduate Theology course work, the submission of two references from professors in the Graduate Theology department, and full-time (9 credit hours or more) enrollment in courses on-campus. Graduate Teaching Assistants are responsible for leading discussion groups for general education Bible and theology courses offered in the Undergraduate Department of Theology and are currently paid at a rate of $8.30* per hour. Graduate and Teaching Assistantships do not qualify students for employee tuition benefits. Please contact the School of Theology and Ministry for additional information.
