

Faculty Profile - Dr. Curtis Ellis

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND CULTURAL STUDIES

POLITICS OF PUBLIC OPINION

Dr. Ellis is the chair of the History, Humanities, and Government Department and an Associate Professor of Government/Political Science. Dr. Ellis combines his practical experience, academic expertise, and calling to invest in college students to energize the classroom and use political science to develop college students into whole persons.

About the Course

We will examine public opinion in American politics (and test what we learn on your peers!) to answer the following questions: How does public opinion form? How do we measure public opinion? What is public opinion on various policy issues? Does politics impact opinion formation? Does public opinion impact policy?
